Swiss Journal of Psychology

Overview

The Swiss Journal of Psychology is published by the Swiss Psychological Society (member of the International Union of Psychological Science). It is a peer-reviewed journal that serves as a forum for the scientific discussion of all areas of psychology and their applications. Its central concern is the mediating function between different fields of psychology, between research and applications, and between psychology in culturally different areas both within Switzerland as well as in other nations. Manuscript Types

Two kinds of articles are published

Regular articles and short research notes. In addition, occasional special issues, invited articles or editorial statements are published. Economy of presentation is strongly recommended.

Manuscript length and format

Regular articles should generally not be longer than 6,000 words (including main text plus notes, acknowledgments, and appendices). Short research notes are limited to 3,500 words (including main text plus notes, acknowledgments, and appendices) and 25 items on the reference list. Manuscripts should be prepared according to the 6th edition of the publication manual of the American Psychological Association (APA) (<http://apastyle.org>). In particular, they should be typed with wide margins and double-spaced throughout. Figures and tables should be supplied on separate sheets grouped at the end of the manuscript with their location in the text clearly indicated. Footnotes should be avoided if possible. Authors are responsible for obtaining and supplying written permission (with the manuscript) to reprint any material from copyrighted sources. References to published work must be in APA style in the text (names, year) and in alphabetical order at the end of the manuscript.

The first page should contain a concise but informative title followed by the names of the authors, the names of the institution(s) with which the authors are affiliated, and a running title not exceeding 48 letters and spaces. The manuscript should be preceded by an abstract of maximum 200 words, and 4–6 keywords, both in English.

At the end of the manuscript, the full postal address of the author responsible for checking proofs and subsequent correspondence should be given along with telephone, telefax numbers and e-mail address. It is recommended that authors who are not native English speakers have their papers checked and corrected by a native speaker before submission. Standard US American spelling and punctuation as given in Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary should be followed.

Manuscript Submission

Only original papers written in English will be considered for publication. Submissions are only accepted online on www.editorialmanager.com/sjp. The online manuscript submission and review system offers easy and straightforward log-in and submission procedures. This system supports a wide range of submission file formats: for manuscripts – Word, Word-Perfect, RTF, TXT and LaTeX; for figures – TIFF, GIF, JPEG, EPS, PPT, and Postscript. Please follow the online instructions for submissions. Should you have any technical questions regarding this process, please contact: matthias.hartmann@psy.unibe.ch. By submission of a manuscript it is implied that neither the manuscript nor any component of it has already been published or is currently considered to be published by another journal.

Authors should ensure that the manuscripts do not contain any information explicitly identifying them, with the exception of the title page and acknowledgments. Manuscripts will be initially screened for scientific quality and compliance with formal aspects before being sent out for peer review (generally two referees). After revision, the final version of the article accepted for publication should also be supplied in electronic form.

Access to the article

With the first online publication of each accepted article the corresponding author is granted access to the publisher's version of the article with the possibility to download it (PDF). This version is for personal use only, which includes the distribution to the co-authors.

Copyright

The first author confirms and guarantees on behalf of themselves and any coauthors that they hold all copyrights to the submitted contribution, including any figures, photographs, linedrawings, plans, maps, sketches, and tables, and that the article and its contents do not infringe in anyway on the rights of third parties. Upon acceptance of the article for publication, the author agrees to transfer to the publisher the exclusive right to reproduce and distribute the article and its contents, both physically and in nonphysical, electronic, or other form, in the journal to which it has been submitted and in other independent publications, with no limitations on the number of copies or on the form or the extent of distribution. These rights are transferred for the duration of copyright as defined by Swiss law. Furthermore, the author transfers to the publisher the following exclusive rights to the article and its contents:
